Paul Jagger is a Court Assistant of The Worshipful Company of Information Technologists and author of The City of London Freeman's Guide - the definitive concise guide to the City of London's customs, ceremonies, officers, institutions, landmarks and traditions. He is a member of the City Livery Club and a life member of Farringdon Ward Club.

In April 2016 Paul received the City's prestigious Root and Branch Award from the Lord Mayor of the City of London for his work in promoting awareness and understanding of the City of London and its Livery Companies, particularly their beneficial impact on wider society.

Paul is a member of many heritage and history bodies including NADFAS, the Cambridge University Heraldic & Genealogical Society, the White Lion Society (supporting HM College of Arms), The Heraldry Society (England and Wales) and is a life member of London Historians.

In his professional life Paul leads a consulting team for IBM in the field of workplace learning and development. He is a Chartered IT Professional, a Fellow of BCS The Chartered Institute for IT, an external consultant to City & Guilds, the Open University and a visiting lecturer at City University (London).

He formerly served with 101 (City of London) Engineer Regiment (EOD) - one of the City's privileged regiments and is a life member of the Victory Services Club and of 101 Engineer Regiment's regimental association.

Paul lives in Hertfordshire with his wife and two young children but he's a Yorkshireman by inclination and still hasn't fully forgiven King Alfred the Great for banishing his Viking ancestors to the Danelaw.
